How Peers Are Summoned Englishmen returning home after long residence in the colonies are often amus-ed and puzzled by some of our antiquated forms and ceremonies. The other day I came across a returned Canadian, who had been much impressed by the terms of Lord Salisbury's circular to his followers in the house of lords, where the premier "ventures to express the hope that it may be consistent with your lordship's convenience to be present in your place upon that day"—the open-ing of parliament. My Canadian friend suggests that if a member of parliament requires to be reminded of his duty to be present when parliament meets, the intimation, instead of taking the form of "venturing to express a hope that it may be consistent with his lordship's conveniences." would be more effectually expressed as a hint that if the member is not present he will incur painful consequences.—London Truth.

A Novel Occupation.

An occupation which does not figure in labor statistics, nor in the social economy at least of America, is discovered in the following advertisement, which appeared in the Blackpool Times, an Euglish newspaper, in the last days of 1896: "Young man, of dark complexion, is prepared to 'let in the New Year' at any house in Blackpool between 12 and 9 a. m., at 3 shillings each without re-freshments." The explanation of this cryptic notice lies, it, seems, in a local superstition that the first visitor to a house in the new year, if he happens to be of a dark complexion, brings it good Inconvenient Ears. "How's your arm?" asked Tommy of the young man who calls at the house.

"It's all right. Why?"
"'Cause I heard mother tell sister that she pecked into the parlor the other night and saw your arm out of place'

A Lover's Apology.

An illiterate young man once got a friend to write a letter for him to his sweetheart. The letter was rather prosaic for a love letter, and he felt that an apology was due to his sweetheart for its lack of tender nothings. It was as follows:

"Please excuse the mildness of this here letter, as the chap wot's writin it is a married man, and he says he can't bide any soft scapin—it allus gives him the spazzums."—Pick Me Up.

THE SWEETEST OF MEMORY'S BELLS.

Wild is the way through the woodland, but there are the sweet fields of clover,
The sighing, sad pines and the jessamine vines, and the rill that leaps laughingly over.
The Hiles that rim it—the shadows that dim it—and there, winding winsomely sweet is the path that still leads to the old home through fiver rangles of wheat. through rivery ripples of wheat!

For through long years of tears and of toiling, like harbor bells over the foam.

Your voices far winging and ringing were singing me—singing me home!

And here, from the pain and the plesaure—
from the serrow and sighing, I flee

Health is the best inheritance. It leaves its influence even to the third and fourth generation. What greater happiness has life in store for any man than to live to a green old age surrounded by his children and his children's children, and see them all robust, happy and successful. Happy the man who lives to carve at the wedding suppers of his grandchildren. Picture yourself a gray-haired but hearty old man at the head of the table at your grandson's wedding, thanking your Maker for the blessing of long life, and asking the blessing of good health for generations yet unborn. It lies in almost every man's power to be thus blessed if he will. If he will only obey Nature's laws and be watchful of his health, he will have long life and happiness. The best preserver of health is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It keeps the digestion perfect, the liver active, and the blood pure. It is the best flesh-builder and nerve invigor tor. The man who resorts to it whenever he feels any symptoms of approaching ill-health will live to a hearty old age. Druggists sell it. Nothing else is "just as good."

Perhaps the courtship progressed more rapidly than it would otherwise have done because Rachel was aware of the shortness of the time of freedom allowed him and how he chafed at it. Yet there was no binding speech between them until the order came that he was to return to his regiment and go to the war. He had no particular skill in the use of words, and his speech with her was straightforward and to the point.

"I am leaving in two days to join my regiment and go out to the Crimen. Since I have been in the west I have the barest means of substance. His learned to love you. Will you let me go happy because you have promised to be my wife?"

The lovers lingered a long time in the cool and pleasant air, and it was not till late that Rachel told her father of the thing which had fallen out that night, and the two received the old man's blessing. Then there was a parting, and Rachel knew that, save for an hour or two on the next evening, she had seen the last of her lover for many a long day.

The gardens descend the slope of the valley, and from the orchard at the bottom a pathway leads into the woods. It was this path the lovers took on the night of their farewells. The spring had come full early, and even the mulber ries began to think of putting forth their leaves. In the woods the primroses shone everywhere, and many an open space was carpeted with bluebells. There were anemones and frail wood sorrel in the shadow of scattered granite rocks, and the garlio flowered whitely where the soil was marshy. Innumerable birds were singing, and every tangled bramble bush held a foolish black most unconsciously for a glade they had

"Some day," he said, "you will hear that I am coming, and you will make ready to meet me. But I shall not find you... I shall hardly seek you... in the house or in the garden. I shall come straight down to the wood and along the old path, and you will be waiting The time will seem long. You will think I cannot be coming. Then, suddenly, a foolish blackbird will shrick away yonder, and in a moment I shall be here, and you will be mine forever."

Rachel turned her eyes upon him. "I am that now," she said. "I am yours am that now," she said. "I am yours forever. But, oh, come back to me quickly. Waking or sleeping, I shall be watching that pathway until you are "And I shall be thinking of you who are waiting for me here," he said. "Re-

Eustace entered and said goodby to Rachel's father, and presently the lovers parted, and the young man strade out under the trees of the drive to the highway and so home.

The time which came after this part-ing may be guessed at by all who know how the war went. Ruchel lived in a perpetual fever of expectation, for the region wherein she dwelt was at that time isoluted, and letters and newspapers alike came to hand all too slowly. .While there has been no formal declaration of war between Greece and Turkey, it appears that hostilities between the two nations have actually begun. Turkey by far is the largest of the two powers, but the Greeks are the most enthusiastic. The Turkish army comprises about 200,000 men and the Greek army only 38,000. The total war strength of Turkey is over 1,000,000 men, while that of Greece is only 215,-000. As has been the case from the ontbreak of the Rebellion in Cuba, this news from the island is conflicting. If Spanish reports are true, the war is over, and there are only a very few insurgents in the field, while if the Cubans tell the truth, the Spanisids have given up all hope of subjugating the Cubans, and are preparing to evacuate the island, as their resources are exhausted. It is not unreasonable, in view of the many contradictory reports that have been received from Cubs, to assume that the statements of both Spaniards and Cubans are exaggerated, and that the war for independence is not yet ended. He makes the following statement VIRGINIA CITY, Jan. 27, '97.

A valuable mare driven by Superintendent Lyman of the Con. Virginia mine on the Comstock Lode, had been in the stable unable to work, from the kick of another animal, received on the inside of the right foreleg above the knee. The skin had been broken and the muscles and tendons severely bruised. During a week's time I had given the limb such treatment, as from thirty year's professional experience I thought beneficial; but without avail The leg was swellen to nearly twice its natural size, and the swelling would not yield to treatment. On Thursday evening, June 18, 1896, I made the first application of the linament, Trib, thoroughly rubbing in half a six ounce bottle over the whole leg. I applied it regularly twich a day for the next three days. On the fourth day the mare went to work completely cared-the most surprising and satisfactory cure coming under my observation during a lifetime devoted to the treatment of

THERE'S F. C. LEE. "NEW! His Ton Minute Talk on Abraham

During the days of the week just past, there has come to me across the interval of a third of a century, the boom of cannon and the savage shot of revolver.

The muffled thunder that came to me was the reverberations from the heavy field piece that roared across Churleston Harbor, sending from its apary throat, the first rebel yell, and with it the first shell, shricking for Southern secession, and like an echo, I hear the crack of the pictol that sent the cruel bullet crashing into the brain of Abraham Lincoln.

When Beauregard fired upon Sumpter, 36 years ago, April 12th, he inaugurated one of the cruelest and bloodiest wars this earth has been hills, it never occurs in abundance. It called upon to witness, and when John Wilkes Booth leveled his weapon at the head of President Lincoln he perpetrated the foulest crime since Judas laid his lying lips on the cheek of Christ. Around those two dates, April 12, '61, and April 14, '65, what dark deeds lie buried! Between those two shots, fired at Fort Sumpter and Ford's theatre, what bloody pages of American history-written in her reddest and richest ink ! Thirty years, is not long in the life of a great nation, but thirty years is a long time in the age of an individual. Thirty years! And the young recruit has been transformed into the grayhaired veteran. The youth all affame with patriotism, marching mile upon mile with heavy musket and knapsack, now finds a needed support in cane and crutch. Thirty years! And the flires of sectional hatrod have burned Mrs. Sarah Hall has filed an applicatout, and in burning, Mason & Dixon's line has become obliterated.

Thirty years! And the most cruelly wronged and maligned man of his day becomes the model for American manhood; the hated emancipator becomes the loved exemplar. Sitting in his office preparing s speech, he wrote: "If elavery is right. and a just God rules in heaven, somebody will be punished for trying to day and keeps the finest of wines and destroy it; but if slavery is wrong, and . just God reigns, somebody will be Judge Massey returned from Elko punished for upholding it." This he read to his law partner, who said, "I would not say that." Lincoln asked, "Is it true?" "Oh yes," was the reply, "It is true, but it is not good policy to say it just now." Honest old Abe answered, 'If it is true I will say it and stand by it,"

In this office scene you have the measure of the man—the secret of his noble life, and because of his fidelity to so generally distributed and so plentiful known truth and duty, he held with unflinching hand the helm that guided We will sell you refrigerators and the tempest tossed ship of state safely ice cream freezers, at next to cost. Will it be counted as eacrilege and blasphemy if we place these two fearful Fridays close together? Is it not appropriate that upon this glorious Easter upon which we commemorate a Risen Christ, that we also hold in memory the one who belped a nation; step forth from the grave of civil war and shake off the grave-clothes of bondage and slavery?

A DANGEROUS RANGE PLANT.

[Newspaper Bulletin No. 21.] A little later than this, each year, com plaints come to the Experiment Station afternoon Constable Leeper was notirespecting unusual deaths of range stock, fled that a bundle had been taken chiefly cattle, suspected of plain poison ing. Accompanying these reports are various theories respecting the identity of the suspected poisonous plants. "Lobelia," "Larkspur" and "Loco Weed" are names offered as being the probable plants to which these unusual deaths are to be ascribed.

There seems to be but little foundation for suspecting these plants, however, since the only representative of the lobelia family of plants known to be at all common in Western Nevada, is an insignificant little herb, having most uninviting wiry herbage. While the plant is found very generally scattered over the does not appear until later in the season than the deaths referred to are reported and, furthermore, we have no well defined reason for considering the plant poisonous.

Respecting larkspur, it may be said that one kind is very common throughout the western part of the State. Tufts of leaves appear in March, the flowers continuing during May and June, the seeds ripening in June and July. It is as to be accessible to stock on any range, and thus, if poisonous to any marked degree, would long ago have come to be known as a plant of a specific poisonous nature. Such does not seem to be the case. Furthermore, feeding experiments involving two closely related wild larkspurs have been performed by ple quantity were fed to separate animals "Well developed, healthy yearling steers, without effect in any case.

Loco weed poisoning may have oc curred. Indeed, such has been reported. Certain plants, at least closely related to the true loco weed, are known to occur on the ranges of southern Washoe county, but their poisonous properties are yet to be established. In the special cases of poisoning reported to the writer, the symptoms were not those peculiar to loco poisoning, seemingly dispelling the theory of poisoning of this character.

In May of 1896, the writer, in com-Station, where deaths had been reported On searching the portion of the range specimens of the plant bearing the comfound: Some of these plants were found theory of their possible responsibility for He spoke never to inflame and anger, the recent deaths. this plant and some of its near relatives. Illustrated Newspaper Bullelin No. 5, entitled "A Poisonous Plant" relating to fine assortment of hoes for school this plant, was distributed to the papers children which parents are invited to of the State, on May 9, 1893, and it is believed printed by most of them shortly afterward. This article contained a brief description of the plant and its habits and an account of an authentic case of poising which had just occurred at the Indian School at Carson, where seven of the inmates had been poisoned by eating the bulbs of this plant, specimens of which sent for identification, accompanied the statement of the case. In view of comprehensive study of this plant to be pursued at the Experiment Station, where its botanical, chemical and toxic properties will be thoroughly in- night. vestigated, this bulletin is presented to of the more strictly scientific studies contemplated.

A HOBO WINGED. Constable Lueper Drops an Escaping Rounder With a Pistol Shot.

A little after 4 o'clock yesterday from a wagon near S. O. Wells' store and immediately began a search. At Wieland's saloon be obtained a mengre description of two suspicious looking characters and soon found them located in a box car on seide track near West street. He entered the car and handcuffed the larger of the two men who offered some resistance, and the second man came not at the Constable's order. The larger man then asked Leeper to remove the handcuffs and he would accompany him. ' The officer did as requested and while talking the man struck him in the face. Leeper knocked the man down and proceeded to handcuff him again, when the other fellow ran up and struck the officer in the back of the head with something, supposedly a stone, and then took to his beels. Leeper immediately recovered from the blow and alled to the runaway to stop, repeathis pistol and fired with the purpose of effect in the calf of the leg and passed entirely through bringing the hoboto the ground. During this time Leeper was holding his prisoner and immediately after the shooting he called someone to look after the wounded man while he took the other to jail. When coming down the alley the prisoner made another attempt at resistance and it was necessary to knockihim down to control him.

The wounded man was lifted into Joe Lachman's wagon and Dr. Phillips called, who dressed the wound and the man was taken to the hospital. The wound is not serious and he will recover. His name is Orin Clarke and he claims to be from San Francisco, but his pal says the wounded man is from Iows. The other man would not give his name, but he will probably be given one before this racket is over.

Eye witnesses to the affair are unani mous in exhonerating Constable Leeper, and say that under the circumstances he was compelled to act as he did; that the men had doubled on him and it was necessary to resort to seeming harsh measures to protect himself and perform his official duty.

It may be added that Constable Mc-Neilly had received a telegram from Wadsworth that a hold-up had occurred there in which a man had been robbed of $17 50 in money and a silver watch, and to search all hobos. These two men are probably members of the gang that committed this robberg, as their acts showed them to be desperate goods chesp. oharacters.
